The History Teacher publishes articles of three general types: (1) reports on promising new classroom techniques, educational programs, curricula, and methods of evaluating instructional effectiveness; (2) analyses of important interpretations, leading historians, historiographical problems, and recent trends in specific fields of historical research; and (3) critical review essays on audiovisual materials, textbooks, and other secondary works suitable for classroom use.

The History Teacher also publishes reviews of audiovisual materials, books, supplementary readers, and other printed classroom materials, with evaluations of their scholarly reliability, formats, and effectiveness of presentation. Reviews are commissioned in advance. Readers interested in contributing reviews should advise the Editor of their qualifications and fields of specialization.

Submission guidelines for The History Teacher are available on the final page of this issue. Additional information for contributing authors is available at https://www.thehistoryteacher.org/contributing.

Correspondence regarding contributions to The History Teacher and materials for review should be sent to the Editor, The History Teacher; California State University, Long Beach; 1250 Bellflower Boulevard; Long Beach, CA 90840-1601.

The History Teacher disclaims responsibility for statements, either of fact or opinion, made by contributors.

The History Teacher is abstracted or indexed in Historical Abstracts, Education Abstracts, Professional Development, Academic Search, America: History and Life, and the U.S. Dept. of Education’s ERIC.

David Ross Alexander taught history and geography at the Owen Sound Collegiate and Vocational Institute for thirty-two years before the school was closed in 2016. Alexander subsequently completed a Master of Arts in History from the University of Waterloo, graduating in 2018. Both Alexander and his colleague Ryan McManaman were co-recipients of the Canadian Governor General’s History Award for Excellence in Teaching in 2014.

Henric Bagerius is an Associate Professor and Senior Lecturer in History and the Director of Studies at the Centre for Academic Development at the Örebro University in Sweden. He has published articles and books on royal sexuality in late medieval Europe, dress reform in nineteenth-century Scandinavia, and conversion narratives in Swedish nudist journals from the 1930s and 1940s. Bagerius was the recipient of the Örebro Student Union’s Excellent Teacher Award in 2016.

Simon Bauer-Leffler serves as a data analyst for the Oregon Department of Human Services. Previously, he was the research coordinator for Oregon State Hospital. Before joining the hospital, he coordinated research efforts between Arizona State University and Starbucks Corporation to support their college achievement plan program. Bauer-Leffler has twelve years of professional research experience in various topics, ranging from community corrections to dental-health knowledge. He specializes in survey research methodology and quantitative analysis.

Darrin Cox, Professor of History at West Liberty University and longtime Viking reenactor who earned his doctorate from Purdue University, is the leader of the Viking Living History Project. He has previously published on the use of living history as early field experience for pre-service teachers and on late medieval noble masculinity’s relationship to violence. As faculty adviser to WLU’s History Club, Cox suggested a foray into living history as a club activity, which ultimately spawned the Viking Living History Project.

Izabela A. Dahl is an Associate Professor and Senior Lecturer in History at the Örebro University in Sweden and was a Visiting Professor at the Bielefeld University in Germany for the 2021-2022 academic year. Her main research interests concern modern and contemporary European history, with analysis addressing social power structures and social categorizations that pre-condition cultural and social contexts.
Jean-Paul R. Contreras deGuzman (Ph.D., University of California, Los Angeles) is a History Teacher at Windward School, where he co-directs the College Division Seminar Program and mentors the Asian American Pacific Islander student affinity groups. He is also a Lecturer in the Department of Asian American Studies and the Race and Indigeneity Cluster at UCLA, where he earned the university-wide Distinguished Teaching Award. His writing appears in Amerasia Journal, California History, Journal of Urban History, Southern California Quarterly, Journal of Asian American Studies, and various anthologies in ethnic, urban, and religious studies.

Jimmy Engren is a Senior Lecturer in History at the Örebro University in Sweden. He is currently head of the Division of the Humanities and the university’s representative on the board of Arkivcentrum Örebro län. His research primarily addresses North American and European migration and labor history during the nineteenth and twentieth centuries. He has also published on history didactics.
The William and Edwyna Gilbert Award recognizes outstanding contributions to the teaching of history through the publication of journal and serial articles, presented annually by the American Historical Association.
